Chapter 1: Introduction and Background

1.1 Introduction

The Official Languages Act 2003 provides for the preparation by public bodies of a language scheme detailing the services which they will provide:

- through the medium of Irish,
- through the medium of English, and;
- through the medium of Irish and English and the measures to be adopted to ensure that any service not currently provided by the body through the medium of the Irish language will be so provided within an agreed timeframe.

In accordance with section 14(3) of the Act, language schemes remain in force for a period of 3 years or until such time as a new scheme is confirmed by the Minister for Arts, Heritage, Regional, Rural and Gaeltacht Affairs, whichever is the later.

1.2 Preparation and Content of the Scheme

In the preparation of this scheme, due regard has been given to the Guidelines issued by the Department of Arts, Heritage, Regional, Rural and Gaeltacht Affairs. In addition, there has been a comprehensive process of consultation with relevant stakeholders.

The Ombudsman for Children's Office is guided by the principle that the provision of Irish language services should be based on:

- the underlying level of demand for specific services in the Irish language,
- the importance of a proactive approach to the provision of such services, and
- the resources, including human and financial resources, and the capacity of the OCO to develop or access the necessary language capability.

This scheme complements the principles of Quality Customer Service and our Customer Charter. It has been formulated with the intention of ensuring that all relevant obligations under the Official Languages Act by the Ombudsman for Children's Office will be fully addressed on an incremental basis, through this and future schemes.

1.3 Commencement date of the Scheme

This Scheme has been confirmed by the Minister for Arts, Heritage, Regional, Rural and Gaeltacht Affairs. It commences with effect from 09 January 2017 and shall remain in force for a period of 3 years or until a new scheme has been confirmed, whichever is the later.

Chapter 2: Overview of the Ombudsman for Children’s Office

The Ombudsman for Children’s Office (OCO) is an independent office. The OCO was set up under a law called the Ombudsman for Children Act 2002.

2.1 Role and Remit

Under this law, the Ombudsman for Children has two main roles:

1. to deal with complaints made by or for children and young people about the actions of public organisations.
2. to promote the rights and welfare of children and young people under 18 years old living in Ireland.

The OCO’s work to promote children’s rights and welfare includes:

- finding out what children and young people are concerned about and highlighting their opinions to the Government and other people who make decisions that affect them;
- supporting people, including children and young people, to find out about children’s rights and how those rights can be respected, protected and made real;
- giving advice to the Government and others to help make sure laws and plans affecting children and young people respect children’s rights;
- encouraging public organisations to work in ways that promote children and young people’s rights and welfare; and
- carrying out or commissioning research to get a better understanding of issues that are important in children and young people’s lives.

More information about the OCO’s work is on our website, www.oco.ie.

OCO’s Vision

We want to see an Ireland where all children and young people are actively heard and respected so that they experience safe, fulfilling and happy everyday lives.

We will use our independence and powers to the fullest extent to bring this about.

OCO’s Values

These are the things that drive us as a team and make us who we are:

Compassionate – we care about children and young people and want to see their lives improved.

Independent – our independence is important so we can say the things that need to be said and hold public organisations to account.

Accessible – we are open to listening to children and young people and the adults who care and work with them.

Authoritative – when we speak out on behalf of children and young people we do so in a confident way informed by our research and backed up by the law that created the OCO.

Innovative – we are creative thinkers and are interested in promoting new ways of working with and for children and young people.

Transparent – we want everything we do to be open and easily understood so we can be held to account for the work we do.

This means that as a team we are committed to providing a high quality professional service and will, at all times treat you politely, respectfully and with dignity.

2.2 Main Functions

The Ombudsman for Children Act 2002 (as amended) sets out the Office's core functions:

- To receive, examine and investigate complaints made by or on behalf of children and young people,
- To undertake research regarding children's rights and welfare, and to provide independent advice on legislative and public policy developments affecting children and young people.
- To promote children's rights and welfare by providing an independent voice on behalf of all children and young people in Ireland and affording children and young people opportunities to be heard in relation to issues that affect and concern them.

2.3 Key Services

- Independent complaints handling
- Education and Participation
- Legislation and Policy

2.4 Customers and Stakeholders

The Ombudsman for Children can examine complaints about Government departments, schools, and public bodies providing services or making decisions about children and families or organisations providing services on behalf of the State. Complaints to the OCO can be made directly by children (anyone under the age of 18) about something that affects them.

Adults can also bring complaints on behalf of children and young people. Parents or extended families often bring complaints to the Office on behalf of their children but professionals such as teachers and youth workers can bring complaints too. Other stakeholders include Government departments, local and regional authorities, health agencies, public and voluntary hospitals, educational bodies, other state bodies and public service agencies.
